

State Libraries Join NASA@ My Library

Four state library partners, supported by Chief Officers of State Library Agencies (COSLA), recently joined the NASA@ My Library team (see map) with an additional eleven state libraries planned by Fall 2018.

Kit 1: Sun-Earth-Moon Connections

State library partners will receive and then circulate three NASA-themed kits to public libraries in their state. These kits will contain several hands-on activities and a facilitation guide with access to online NASA resources.

- These first four state library partners, from Michigan, North Dakota, South Carolina and Washington, participated in the NASA@ My Library workshop in late February, joining 75 public libraries that were previously competitively selected
- This project is funded by NASA's Science Activation program and supports the goal of 50-state active learners by 2020
